Let's Start!

Writing Spot: I want to speak to your boss, now!

Learning Outcome

Identify and provide solutions to problems in a range of social contexts.

Ask your partner:

- Have you properly completed a customer complaint form before? If yes, when?
- When would a person complete one? What is poor customer service?

Can Do Statements

- I can write about customer service.
- I can write a customer complaint.
- I can describe behavior and personality.

Let's Explore!

Listen to a disappointed customer's letter of complaint. Do you think she is being reasonable?

* Fair and sensible.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

Dear Sir / Madam,

I am writing to air my feelings about our visit to your restaurant, Zanzibar, on the 4th of June. The service was so poor, that our evening was spoiled!
I called the restaurant last month to book a table at 8 p.m. I later received a confirmation regarding my booking by email that said:

- 1) we had a window table so we could look out at the harbor.
- 2) my daughters (6 and 8 years old) would receive free children's meals.
- 3) there was a special, perfect for vegetarians.

When we promptly arrived at the restaurant, the waiter hastily ushered us to a table next to the kitchen and away from a view. When I kindly tried to explain that we booked a table elsewhere, the waiter swiftly became rude and unhelpful.

Secondly, the vegetarian special was not available. This showed a clear lack of communication on your part. How can you advertise for vegetarians and then not meet those customers' needs?

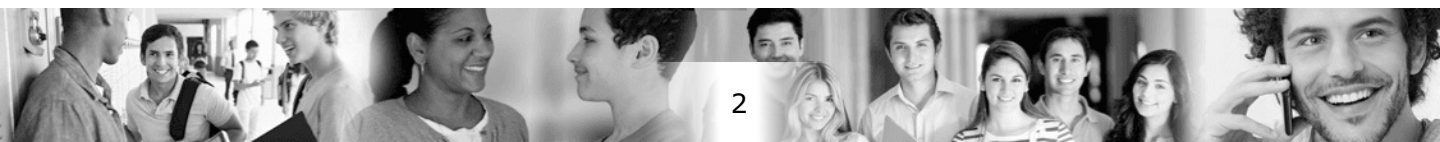

Thirdly, when we asked for the bill, it was incorrect. Our waiter charged the children's meals to my credit card as well! When I pointed out that we were told these would be free of charge, he told me to talk to the manager.

Overall, we felt the ambiance was extremely unwelcoming. Our waiter was unprofessional, inattentive and curt. It was very disappointing indeed.

I enclose a copy of the bill.

I look forward to receiving your response.

Yours faithfully,
Ms. Janine King
